

Products Liability

Products liability is a multifaceted area of law which reflects a variety of possible issues. Products liability is a constantly changing environment where product manufacturers and sellers need effective risk management and legal representation. At EWH, our clients benefit from our historical and global experience in this area of the law. EWH attorneys have successfully defended clients in product liability cases involving industrial and commercial equipment, medical devices, chemicals, and welding consumables to just name a few. EWH attorneys understand crisis-management resulting from product recalls or regulatory action, and provide our clients with in-depth analysis and litigation management. EWH lawyers have defended clients against product liability claims from the onset of a case, handling all aspects of discovery and trial but also recognize the benefits of alternative dispute resolution.

Most importantly, EWH provides the wide range of legal services required by manufacturers and sellers of products and is able to do so cost effectively.